The National Congressional Greenback Committee to-day resolved that it is not advisable to call the National Convention prior to the holding of such to nominate candidates for President and Vice President.

In the opinion of the best informed members of the appropriation committees of both houses an extra session is now inevitable, and the prospects are that noe only one or two but probably all of the unfinished appropriation bills will go over together. This will, of course, necessitate the convening of the next Congress at an early date, instead of in the fall, as has been contemplated in the event of the failure of one of the appropriation bills.

Pro Inox—An occasional dealer reports a little ingrease of demand, but the majority state that their transactions foot up no better than for some weeks past. Buyers continue to hold off unless tempted by excellent from and the lowest prices. With those indusements offered they manufact a disposition to an another their states their stocks, but not otherwise.

MANUFOCCARD INOX—More orders are being received by the mills, but prices remain about the same. When the spring trade opens up the mills will doubtless have about all they can do, and this may be a pesiude to better these for the iron trade, and if the prespect there continues to brighten, the intervencent will gradually extend to the West. There is a possibility that buyers will bold there is a possibility that buyers will bold.
